

We are a reseller in the Medical Lamp field.

We sell Osram products in the HBO and HXP, XBO fields. These all use/have mercury contained within in very small amounts.

If there was a ban on these lamps not only would our business be greatly affected but also our end users. Many of our end users are Laboratories at leading Universities in the UK and abroad. What are they to do?

As there are no alternatives to these lamps this will have a detrimental effect on these institutions as well our business with them.
